

TURKS OVER RUNNING ENTIRE NEUTRAL ZONE

BRITISH ENTRENCHED AT CHANAK, HEMMED IN BY KEMALIST LEGIONS

Before the British Lines the Turks March Back and Forth With Arms Reversed and Small White Flags Aloft to Indicate No Desire to Fight

Kemal Thus Far Has Ignored the Pleas of General Harrington for a Conference; Allied Commanders' Entreaties Fall on Deaf Ears

By United Press

Constantinople, Sept. 29.—The neutral zone today swarmed with Turkish soldiers as Great Britain tried in vain to arrange a conference with Mustapha Kemal, leader of the nationalists.

The British entrenched at Chanak are hemmed in by the legions of Kemalists, who are being reinforced hourly. The Turks have overrun the entire neutral zone of the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles. Kemalists are under instructions to advance to the British outposts, but to avoid a clash.

Before the British lines the Turks march back and forth with arms reversed and small white flags aloft to assure the British they have no desire to fight.

British soldiers have been warned by Sir Charles Harrington to do their utmost to avoid open hostilities, pending a conference with Kemal.

Kemal thus far has ignored the pleas of General Harrington for a conference, and even the entreaties of the allied communications to the Turkish leaders have fallen on deaf ears.

In some places in the zone British and Turkish soldiers are mingling freely. The strongest positions of the Kemalists are in the region of Erenkeui, Sirtepe, Hill, Liphaki, Bigha and Karabigha.

Sultan of Turkey Abdicated

Paris, Sept. 29.—The sultan of Turkey, Mohammed VI, has abdicated in favor of his cousin, Prince Abdul Medjid, according to unconfirmed reports received here today from Constantinople.

Another report stated that Mohammed had decided to abdicate, but acceptance of this had been held up pending word from Mustapha Kemal, whose decision in the matter will be final.

The sultan, since the war, has been powerless in the Turkish government.

It is he who accepted the treaty of Sevres which banished Turkey from Europe after the war.

The sultan, being head of the church of the Moslem world, was allowed to remain in Constantinople. He retained his palace and a small bodyguard.

The Turkish nationalists headed by Mustapha Kemal resented the sultan's surrender of Constantinople and Thrace to the allies, and set up a government by national assembly in Angora. The nationalists, being all powerful now through their brilliant victories, planned to oust the sultan.

English Government Supports Harrington

London, Sept. 29.—The government assured Harrington he would be accorded its complete support in demanding Kemal's withdrawal.

He was authorized to decide whether to impose a time limit.

The instructions to Harrington came after the morning meeting of the cabinet at which the ministers were advised of the reports that the Kemalists were in actual contact with the British defenses, and that at some points they had reached as far as the Dardanelles.

The British commanders are most patient, it was pointed out, but it was agreed that further encroachments would jeopardize the military position and cannot be allowed to continue.

This is the second ultimatum that has been served on Kemal. The first was handed the Kemalists by the allied admirals in the Near East, and it was demanded that he evacuate the neutral zone within 48 hours.

Kemal continued to pour his legions into the Chanak region before the entrenched British.

Kemal gave an evasive answer to the ultimatum, in which he stated that he had no cognizance of the existence of a neutral zone. This answer was described by high British officials as "impertinent."

Turks Attempt Surprise Attack

Athens, Sept. 29.—A party of armed Turks recruited in Constantinople, attempted a surprise attack in the neutral zone in the region of Stranza, near Chatalja, but was dispersed with some casualties, according to reports received here today.

In Possession of Entire Chanak Area
Constantinople, Sept. 29.—The Turkish infantry is in possession of the entire Chanak area except a semi-circle sector 15 miles deep around the town of Chanak which is held by the entrenched British, it was reported here today.

Masses of Kemalists continued to pour into the neutral zone of the straits.

To Reorganize Greek Army

Athens, Sept. 29.—Colonel Gonatas, the power behind the throne of King George II moved today to reorganize the Greek army for a march into Thrace to protect it against the threatened invasion of the Kemalists.

In official circles it was expected recognition of King George II as the successor of the deposed Constantine would be forthcoming from the allies and the United States soon.

The new government assumed a more stable aspect as the new cabinet headed by Alexander Zaimis, formerly premier, took office.

"The full reorganization of our military forces to defend Thrace is the main work of the new government," Colonel Gonatas declared to the United Press today.

"We wish to maintain order and achieve the cessation of internal deficiency. We are giving the country a non-partisan government."

"We requested the removal of Constantine from the throne of Greece because he was an obstacle in the relations with our victorious allies. Furthermore, the revolution was carried out to avoid the loss of Thrace."

Turks Using Indian Tactics

The Turks are edging nearer and nearer the British lines of the Dardanelles, carrying white flags and reversed arms, as signals of friendship.

They are employing tactics similar to those used by the Indians in surrounding white settlements, making professions that no harm is intended. The Turks have pushed their outposts right up to the British trenches, and now occupy all strategic points in the neutral zone, and have completely hemmed in the English, whose lines are fanned out in a semi-circle around Chanak.

Meanwhile, General Harrington, British commander-in-chief, is making every effort to get Mustapha Kemal to

WORKING UNDER RIFLE FIRE BANDITS ROB PEOPLES STATE BANK AT PINWOOD

(By United Press.)
Bemidji, Sept. 29.—Working under rifle fire, bandits numbering at least five, blew up the safe of the Peoples State bank at Pinewood, early today and escaped with $1,100 in cash and a large number of bonds.

The yeggs cut all wires leading into the town, and began work at about 2:30 this morning.

A. M. Thompson, an ex-service man and his brother Ray Thompson, sleeping above the Soo Line depot, fired several shots from a German war relic rifle at the bandits while they worked.

They failed to stop them. The bandits returned the fire, and Ray Thompson was wounded in the head with buck shot. More than seventeen shots were exchanged.

Three blasts finally wrecked the bank safe, and one side of the building was blown out.

C. A. Bye, storekeeper was fired upon when he stuck his head out of a window near the bank as the bandits were leaving. They escaped in an automobile which was deserted a quarter of a mile from town. It is believed the bandits obtained another car there.

Pinewood is a village of about fifty residents, fifteen miles north of Bemidji.

An attempt was made to rob it last November, but the inner door of the safe could not be opened. Joseph Tagley of Mentor was badly wounded in a bank robbery at Mentor recently. He is president of the Pinewood bank.

The State Bank of Hines northeast of Bemidji, was robbed Thursday morning.

It is believed the same gang is responsible for all three robberies.

SAILSTAD JURY IS REPORTED AS HOPELESSLY DISAGREED

JURY DELIBERATING ON WHETHER SAILSTAD IS DEAD OR ALIVE

SUIT AFFECTS PAYMENT OF $80,000 IN LIFE INSURANCE POLICIES

(By United Press.)

Superior, Wis., Sept. 29.—After 24 hours deliberation, the jury in the sensational Sailstad suit was still out, and is reported to be hopelessly disagreed.

The jury, charged with determining whether Edward J. Sailstad, the wealthy Eau Claire business man is dead or alive, took the case at noon Thursday.

Mrs. Leona Sailstad Richardson, contending that her husband died in the flames that destroyed their cottage on Lake Nebagamon, is suing the New York Life Insurance company for $10,000 on a policy. The suit will affect the payment of $70,000 more insurance carried by Sailstad in favor of his family and his business.

The insurance company, backed by other insurance companies, alleges Sailstad placed the bones of a corpse in the cottage and burned it to the ground to cover his disappearance. They produced testimony that Sailstad was seen after the fire in the company of his stenographer, Miss Dorothy Anderson, who disappeared at the same time. It is believed the jury will report a disagreement late today and be discharged.

St. Paul, Sept. 29.—Four hundred men are now fighting forest fires in the vicinity of Little Fork, Koochiching county.

More than 12,000 acres have been burned, according to reports to State Forester W. T. Cox.

A. R. McCullen, ranger at Little Fork, said the fire had not reached green timber. If strong winds blow flames into the standing timber, the situation will be serious, he said.

The fires are very bad in the vicinity of Ellsmere, St. Louis, according to Adjutant General Rhinow, now at Duluth. Fires are burning in a semi-circle forty-five miles north and east of Duluth, he reported.

Thirty-one settlers have been taken to towns from Floodwood for protection, and are being cared for by the Red Cross.

No break in the ranks of the striking shopmen. In spite of the predictions to the contrary, materialized at the several Minneapolis railroad shops today, M. Adams, assistant to R. A. Henning, in charge of the strike in the northwest, said today.

The Minneapolis Trades and Labor assembly last night voted to turn over $1,200 from its defense fund to the strikers, which local leaders claim, will enable the strikers to carry on for some time.

In explaining the conditions throughout the strike area in the northwest Mr. Adams last night at the assembly said:

"Conditions are all right all along the line outside of the twin cities. It is here that we are having the most trouble. This is the strategic point, because so long as the word goes out from the twin cities that the men are holding fast, the men outside will stick."

Concerning the strike situation today in the northwest, R. A. Henning in a prepared statement, declares that "the strike is still standing almost 100 per cent solid at practically every point on all railroads."

"There are but very few desertions," the statement says, "and these are not large at any particular point. I have been receiving reports from the general chairmen who are out on our lines, also the several grand lodge officers who are in our territory and all of them indicate that our people are determined to stand firm until the strike is settled on a basis at least equal to the Willard-Jewell plan, which has now been accepted by at least 71 railroads, employing in the neighborhood of 125,000 shopmen."

NORTHERN MINNESOTA TOURIST SEASON SHOULD BE EXTENDED

WONDERFUL HUNTING AND FISHING, SUNNY DAYS AND COOL NIGHTS

The Duluth Herald has joined the campaign for the extension of the tourist season as promulgated by the Brainerd Dispatch and the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce and which idea is now being pushed far and wide.

Here is what Editor Stillman H. Bingham says in the Duluth Herald of Wednesday, September 27th.

"These golden autumn days, to many the most alluring of the year, inspire the Brainerd Dispatch to inquire why Northern Minnesota's tourist season should not be extended through September and October."

"There is only one answer. It should be."

"The woods have just begun to turn and from now until November they will present most gorgeous panorama of color that ever enchanted a lover of nature. The climate, too, at this period is usually ideal: the days are sunny and comfortably warm, the nights are cool and the air is clear and stimulating as wine and there is no Volstead act applying to its use, or any trust controlling the supply. Mosquitoes and insect pests that annoy campers and outdoor travelers during the summer have disappeared; in fact, the only things that bite well, of concern to the campers, are the fish; and they are plentiful. Still another inducement in the fall months is the hunting and where on the North American continent can a greater variety of game be found so close to civilization than in Northern Minnesota?"

"Yet with all these attractions splendid roads and trails are almost deserted; keepers of resorts and camps have closed their places as if winter were right on their heels and tourists are shooed away instead of encouraged to linger and enjoy the country at its loveliest."

"The Dispatch is doing good service by calling attention to an opportunity that most of Northern Minnesota has overlooked."

It may be stated, that the resorts and cottages of the Brainerd Lake Region, acting through their representation in the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce, are in favor of lengthening the tourist season to September and October and are offering every kind of an inducement to the tourist, hunter and fisherman to enjoy these months.

Many of these cottages, like those at "Breezy Point", have cobblestone fireplaces. A man can only use a

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 29.—Efforts were being made today to secure a leading New Jersey pathologist to perform autopsies on the bodies of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Mills, whose murders remained unsolved after fourteen days of fruitless investigation by authorities of two counties.

Through autopsies performed on the bodies, it is believed there is a possibility of securing evidence that will bring light as to the identity of the murderer and the circumstances under which the dual slaying took place.

No autopsy was performed on the body of the Rev. Hall.

MRS. STILLMAN WINS -BABY GUY NOT SON OF THE INDIAN GUIDE

REFEREE DECIDES IN HER FAVOR OR AND AGAINST JAMES A. STILLMAN

RULES THAT BABY GUY IS THE SON OF THE MILLIONAIRE BANKER

(By United Press.)

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Mrs. Stillman wins.

Referee Daniel J. Gleason in an opinion made public today decided in her favor in the divorce suit brought by James A. Stillman, millionaire and former president of the National City bank.

The referee recommended that Stillman be refused a divorce. He ruled that baby Guy Stillman, central figure in the sensational suit, is the son of the millionaire banker. This means that baby Guy is entitled to share in the vast fortunes of the family.

The contention that Fred Beauvis, Indian guide is the father of Guy, is rejected as not proven.

A recent opinion is that Mrs. Stillman has proven her counter-charge that Stillman was intimate with Florence Helen Leeds, that he intended her as his wife, and that they had two children.

However no divorce is granted to Mrs. Stillman as she did not apply for actual separation.

Gleason's recommendations will go before Supreme Court Justice Moschauer at Poughkeepsie and he will be required either to confirm or refuse them.

It is the usual procedure for the judge to confirm the referee's decision.

Stillman's attorneys probably will file objection to such confirmation, however, and will also appeal the case which will lead to further legal fights.

Fish bite good in cool weather. The hunting season is on in September and October. An abundant crop of partridges is predicted when the season opens in October. Duck hunters are having good luck in September and the shooting will be still better in October.

Roads and trails are at their best. Experts have computed there is less automobile engine and tire trouble in September and October than any other months of the year.

The Northern Pacific and Minnesota & International railways have restored passenger train service into the Brainerd Lake Region and hunting parties make up many of its passenger lists.

The Dispatch, before advocating any extension of the tourist season, had the cooperation of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce and its summer resort members.

Come to the Brainerd Lake Region, get acquainted with the grandest state in the union.

MRS. STILLMAN WINS —BABY GUY NOT SON OF THE INDIAN GUIDE

REFEREE DECIDES IN HER FAVOR OR AND AGAINST JAMES A. STILLMAN

RULES THAT BABY GUY IS THE SON OF THE MILLIONAIRE BANKER

(By United Press)
Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Mrs. Stillman wins.

Referee Daniel J. Gleason in an opinion made public today decided in her favor in the divorce suit brought by James A. Stillman, millionaire and former president of the National City bank.

The referee recommended that Stillman be refused a divorce. He ruled that baby Guy Stillman, central figure in the sensational suit, is the son of the millionaire banker.

This means that baby Guy is entitled to share in the vast fortunes of the family.

The contention that Fred Beauvais, Indian guide is the father of Guy, is rejected as not proven.

A recent opinion is that Mrs. Stillman has proven her counter-charge that Stillman was intimate with Florence Helen Leeds, that he intended her as his wife, and that they had two children.

However no divorce is granted to Mrs. Stillman as she did not apply for actual separation.

Gleason's recommendations will go before Supreme Court Justice Moschauer at Poughkeepsie and he will be required either to confirm or refuse them.

It is the usual procedure for the judge to confirm the referee's decision. Stillman's attorneys probably will file objection to such confirmation, however, and will also appeal the case which will lead to further legal fights.

PERSHING UNABLE TO DECORATE S. D. YANKS

Mitchell, S. D., Sept. 29.—Word has been received from the war department that General John J. Pershing, who was scheduled to come to Mitchell from Washington to present the Croix de Guerre, bestowed by France to the 147th field artillery, will not be able to come.

Major General Bell, Chicago, commanding the Sixth Corps area, and former chief of the 33rd division in France, will take General Pershing's place. General Bell was scheduled to arrive here late Thursday and remain until Saturday morning.

The decoration of the colors and the presentation of medals to 18 different men and officers of the 147th Field artillery will be the high spots in the week's corn palace celebration.

The presentation will take place at Hitchcocks park today about 5 p. m. Thousands of service men from over the state have signified their intention of being present for the ceremony.

Mildred Harris' Finery Held in Minneapolis

Minneapolis, Sept. 29.—Finery and furbelows of Mildred Harris, actress and former wife of Charles Chaplin, film comedian, are being held in Minneapolis, pending the outcome of a writ of attachment filed against Miss Harris by J. W. Rubinstein of Los Angeles. Miss Harris played in Minneapolis two weeks ago.

According to the complaint filed by Rubinstein, he obtained a contract for her Sept. 20, 1921, in which she was to play in vaudeville for 12 weeks at $1,750 a week. He was acting as her manager at the time, Rubinstein contends, and was to receive $200 a week as his commission.

Of his commissions, Rubinstein contends, he received but $550. He is suing for $1,850.

PREPARE FOR SUN- DAY SCHOOL MEET

CONVENTION HERE IN OCTOBER

Definite Plans Must be Made Providing for Reception and Entertainment of Delegates

An important meeting will be held in the Y. M. C. A. building Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock when the pastors of the churches, superintendents of the Sunday schools, and the general committee of arrangements for the State Sunday school convention to be held here in October, will confer on matters that demand immediate attention.

The date for the meeting of this body in Brainerd is rapidly drawing near and if Brainerd is to do what must be done, if the entertainment of the convention is to do credit to the city, some definite plans must be made, and the whole of the people interested in Sunday school work must get behind the general committee and give their assistance.

But in stressing the importance of the city's united effort it must not be forgotten that the members of the general committee and the pastors of the churches and superintendents of the Sunday schools are responsible for making the necessary arrangements for the convention, and it is of great importance that they come together in this meeting Saturday afternoon.

TIERNAN PATERNITY DECISION SATURDAY

Chicago, Sept. 29.—John P. Tiernan, Notre Dame law professor, his wife and baby "Billy," whose father Mrs. Tiernan says, is Harry Poulin, haberdasher of South Bend, Ind., had returned to South Bend today, after a futile effort to persuade Dr. Albert Abrams, California scientist, to make a private blood test in support of Tiernan's claim that he is not the father of his wife's child.

With a decision expected Saturday from Judge Ducomb in the paternity suit at South Bend, Dr. Abrams refused to make the test privately, or on Tiernan alone, without instructions from the court. Poulin had refused to submit to the blood test.

Regardless of Judge Ducomb's decision if it frees Poulin of the charge, Professor Tiernan said he would continue his efforts to prove his former friend, the haberdasher, is "Billy's" father.

Packing Up for Vacation

(By United Press.) South Bend, Ind., Sept. 29.—Mrs. Augusta Tiernan was packing up today in preparation for a long vacation.

Mrs. Tiernan denied that a reconciliation had been effected between herself and her husband.

She declared that he only stood by her during her hearing against Harry Poulin, who is alleged to be the father of Mrs. Tiernan's third child.

"We have been too busy with the case to consider our domestic affairs," she said. "John has stood by me wonderfully, but he has not offered to start life again, and, of course, I am in no position to ask him to."

"There is a chance that something will happen to re-unite us and bring happiness, but whether we decide to go our own ways or not, I shall take my babies away, at least until the second trial."

"I do not know whether I will take all three children, or only "Billy," Professor Tiernan wants to put the two babies in a school in Chicago, but I am going to fight to take them with me. I just could not live without my babies."

Mrs. Tiernan said she did not know where she was going, but indicated her destination would probably be her mother's home in Bronson, Michigan. Mrs. Tiernan plans to be in court tomorrow to hear the decision in the case.

ADVISORY BOARD, COMMITTEES MEET

Chamber of Commerce Finance and Budget Committees to Meet This Friday Afternoon

ADVISORY BOARD AT 5 O'CLOCK

Project to Bring Disabled Service Men to Brainerd Region to go Into Farming, Etc

There will be a meeting of the finance and budget committees of the Chamber of Commerce at 4 o'clock this Friday afternoon. This will be followed by a meeting of the advisory board at 5 o'clock. This meeting is of unusual importance. There will be presented to the members of the board a matter which if given favorable consideration and active support will result in bringing many young married men into Crow Wing county, who, settling here, will develop small enterprises on the land lying outside of the city. This is a government undertaking for the purpose of training disabled service men in small agricultural undertakings, such as raising poultry, and truck gardening.

The government will send an instructor into the city who will teach the necessary things and hold the men here in Brainerd and Crow Wing county, saving those already here, of whom there are eight, from the necessity of going to the cities during the winter for instruction. It is quite possible that if this goes across four hundred disabled service men with their families may be induced to take advantage of the splendid conditions for their health and prosperity offered by this county.

Brainerd Office Supply Co. To New Location

C. W. Anderson, manager of the Brainerd Office Supply Co., announces that this business will occupy new quarters on October 2nd. This will be the second time that the business has been moved to more desirable quarters since Mr. Anderson assumed the management. He went into it when it was housed in the Gardner block, from there it was transferred to Laurel street, and on Monday of next week the business will be carried on in the Anna block, 208 South Seventh street, formerly occupied by the Jos. P. Prosser plumbing business and next door to the O. A. Peterson Clothing Co.

The Brainerd Office Supply Co. has been compelled to remove from their present quarters because of limitation in space which prevented an attractive display of the wares carried by the company. In their new quarters there will be ample room to present the goods to the view of the public in an attractive manner.

The Brainerd Office Supply Co. carries a full line of office supplies including the larger and more costly equipment such as typewriters and adding machines. In their new quarters they expect to add to this heavier line and display it in such a way that customers may have the opportunity of seeing the machines in action.

This office supply equipment includes ledgers, files, typewriter ribbons, and all other articles used in the modern office. Anything that may be asked for not in stock will be ordered for the user.

A large and choice line of school supplies is handled, and the company has in stock all sizes of tablets for school use. These are distinctive, in most cases carrying on the front page a picture of Brainerd's high school building. A large assortment of stationery is in stock and all requirements in this line can be fully met.

In addition to this stock, a large line of Halloween and Christmas goods has been ordered, the Christmas stock including not only Christmas cards of high grade but also leather goods, kodak albums, and other gifts that are both usable and artistic.

The motto of the manager of this business, accepted at the time when he went into it, is: "Stick to your own line." Mr. Anderson does not expect to cross the limits of the line of business in which he is engaged, but he does intend to increase the stock of goods in his own line and attempt to supply any requirements of his legitimate customers.

While the business will be formally opened in its new quarters on October 2nd, there will be no closing of the doors during the removal of supplies. Any one going to the old stand after the goods have been removed will be received there until October 2nd, and if what they wish to purchase has been transferred, it will be secured for them without any inconvenience to the customer.

This business supplies a real need in the city of Brainerd and there will be general satisfaction in the announcement that its growth has necessitated removal to larger quarters.

Too Much of a Good Thing

"It is six years since I had my first stomach trouble. It rapidly grew worse. I was reduced to skin and bone. My doctor put me on a starvation diet, and when my pains grew worse I concluded it was too much of a good thing. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Theme to be Carried Through All the Sessions at Grand Marais is "The Rural Church"

At the annual meeting of the First Congregational church held Thursday evening, there were three delegates elected to attend the meeting of the Duluth Association of Congregational churches which will be held Oct. 4 and 5 at Grand Marais, Minnesota, on the north shore of Lake Superior, 127 miles north of Duluth. This will afford a splendid opportunity of seeing the glorious country lying in this far away part of Minnesota. Pilgrim Congregational church Duluth, is to supply the cars necessary to carry the delegates over the good road stretching between Duluth and Grand Marais. The cars leave this church at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, October 4th, and on the return journey they leave Grand Marais early Friday morning of the same week.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1922

BRAINERD AND THE STRIKE

THERE are three different positions taken by the citizens of Brainerd at this time, when the strike has made itself felt in the homes, business houses, and the general affairs of the city.

At the hour when the men left their work there was a very prevalent expectation that within a few days or weeks they would return to work on the basis of satisfactory agreements arranged in conference with railroad executives.

As each attempt to settle the vexed points involved, postponed the date of a hoped for agreement, the expectations that inspired confidence at the start were slowly but surely effaced.

But, even up to the time of the acceptance of the Baltimore plan by a number of the executives in conference with their employees, confidence that an agreement would soon be reached, saved the people of Brainerd from the hopelessness and helplessness that has been gradually settling upon the community since it was borne in upon the thoughts of our citizens that the railroads and the men are not apparently approaching any settlement.

The inevitable result of this deadlock has been witnessed in the reactions of the people who, as we have already pointed out, have been divided into at least three different groups, each taking a different position.

A considerable number of the men, more particularly those with families, noting the approaching winter, feeling a financial pinch, seeing the needs of their families unsupplied, and dreading the possibility of idleness with resultant lack of income, have been led to desire to return to work, hoping that the conditions of their employment would not be below those standards obtaining when they left their places in the shops. And some of these, more hardly hit than others, have been brought to the place where they must be earning if they are to supply domestic needs.

In the second group are those who have not lost confidence that a settlement will be secured by their leaders, if the men only stand together and show a united front. Some of these may be less seriously affected than the group already described, and those who have not the responsibility of providing for a wife and family may not sense the nightmare that keeps their comrades awake while they sleep.

In the other group are citizens who stand ready to do all that they can to help bring about a resumption of work. These are not, in most cases, emissaries of the railroads but, business and professional men, who are interested in having those who have made their homes in this city remain here as neighbors after the strike is a thing of the past.

Such being the situation, there ought to be a readiness to impute the highest possible motives, and a hesitancy before unduly censuring the attitude of the other party or parties. Brainerd's citizens, irrespective of whether they are business men, professional men, men at work, or men on strike, are all interested in bringing the strike to an end. And no one in seeking to influence the strikers one way or the other should be too hardly blamed. Each has his own conception of which course will result in the highest good of the strikers.

If the pressure of conditions leads some to favor a return to work, the circumstances are to blame, for family misfortune and need may try even the strongest of men, and these ought not to be blamed for reacting under the pressure of conditions. Neither ought others, having a different viewpoint and less pressing need, to be too harshly blamed for their stand. Nor ought those others who are ready to afford any assistance, splendidly proved by their extending credit through these weeks, to be held up as opponents of the best interests of the strikers. Their businesses, and with these their income, are depending on the strikers whom, by in any way hurting, they injure at cost to themselves.

During these days the best morale of the citizenship of Brainerd ought to be brought to the top. Misreading motives, misjudging attitudes, and refusing to concede that the other fellow has any reason for his particular stand, will not in any way help the situation, either now or in the future.

BRAINERD'S SCHOOLS

AT two meetings held in Brainerd during this week the educational requirements of the city have been discussed. There is encouragement for those who are responsible to the people for the city's educational program in the interest that is made evident by these discussions. The more the overcrowded condition is brought home to the minds of the people the more hope there is that at the opportune time they will put across a building program that will be submitted to them by the Board of Education.

During the fall and winter sentiment may be aroused that will swing the city into line for a real advance in providing the schools needed to meet the need. The different parts of the city have an opportunity to test out the feelings in their districts with a view to furthering a city-wide sentiment, whose unification and freedom from divisive and parochial viewpoints, will have an opportunity for expression when the School Board asks a mandate from the people.

However, criticism of existing conditions will not immediately remedy those conditions. Overcrowding is a fact which will not be changed until larger buildings are erected and that cannot be done in 1922.

An announcement of the employment of another male teacher and the strings that the School Board has out for the purpose of securing others shows that the board is striving to build up a teaching staff to relieve the burden due to the increased number of children in the schools.

It is the hope of Brainerd's citizens that the legislature will return a reasonable amount of the Gross Earnings Tax, so that this city may not be so severely penalized for having within it a large source of taxation that is of no direct benefit to the city when the tax roll is under consideration. Such an act of the legislature would reduce the burden of the school tax that rests so heavily on the property owners of the city and open the way for a consideration of the crying need for a new high school.

Attention of citizens can be directed to no better or more important interest than the educational requirements of Brainerd, and if, through the coming winter, citizens will give this their careful study, seeking to acquaint themselves with the facts, cooperating with the School Board in its task of providing the best possible educational advantages with the present equipment, 1923 may see a program calling for the building of a high school, less imposing than those built where the taxes on such products as iron ore yield a vast income, but capable of meeting all the needs of the city of Brainerd, supported by the voters of the city.

THE death of United States Senator Tom Watson robs the senate of one of its explosive elements. Such men are missed more than their more easily regulated and controlled fellows.

WE are to have legislation with teeth in it. And this may be well if the teeth are good. But there are people who wish they had no teeth, their's are bad, and they ache.

meet him in conference where he can have a "shown down" on the intention of the Turks. No definite reply to Harrington's wireless message, however, has been received and the only sign from the Turkish forces has been the continued advance of the fighting men.

The 48 hour ultimatum served on the Turks demanding that they evacuate the neutral zone, brought forth merely the reply that the Turks were unaware of such a zone.

The British are preparing for desperate resistance if the Turks, after quietly taking possession of the zone, attempt to pinch off the Chanak. Soldiers and sailors have dug earth works fortifications, bristling with barb wire and machine guns. Behind the British in the Dardanelles lie the dreadnaughts, whose big guns can drop shells for a radius of 20 miles around. Aircraft, tanks, armored cars are held in readiness.

The Turks, so far as is known, have not yet brought up any heavy artillery.

In London Premier Lloyd George and his ministers are awaiting word from the Near East, loath to give the order that may mean the beginning of another big war.

At Norfolk, Va., 12 United States destroyers are being rapidly provisioned and equipped for a dash to the Dardanelles to protect American interests.

The Greeks, having overthrown King Constantine, and crowned King George II, are preparing to rush a new army to Thrace to prevent the Turks reoccupying that territory.

The sultan is reported to have abdicated.

BRAINERD AND THE STRIKE

THERE are three different positions taken by the citizens of Brainerd at this time, when the strike has made itself felt in the homes, business houses, and the general affairs of the city.

At the hour when the men left their work there was a very prevalent expectation that within a few days or weeks they would return to work on the basis of satisfactory agreements arranged in conference with railroad executives.

As each attempt to settle the vexed points involved, postponed the date of a hoped for agreement, the expectations that inspired confidence at the start were slowly but surely effaced.

But, even up to the time of the acceptance of the Baltimore plan by a number of the executives in conference with their employees, confidence that an agreement would soon be reached, saved the people of Brainerd from the hopelessness and helplessness that has been gradually settling upon the community since it was borne in upon the thoughts of our citizens that the railroads and the men are not apparently approaching any settlement.

The inevitable result of this deadlock has been witnessed in the reactions of the people who, as we have already pointed out, have been divided into at least three different groups, each taking a different position.

A considerable number of the men, more particularly those with families, noting the approaching winter, feeling a financial pinch, seeing the needs of their families unsupplied, and dreading the possibility of idleness with resultant lack of income, have been led to desire to return to work, hoping that the conditions of their employment would not be below those standards obtaining when they left their places in the shops. And some of these, more hardly hit than others, have been brought to the place where they must be earning if they are to supply domestic needs.

In the second group are those who have not lost confidence that a settlement will be secured by their leaders, if the men only stand together and show a united front. Some of these may be less seriously affected than the group already described, and those who have not the responsibility of providing for a wife and family may not sense the nightmare that keeps their comrades awake while they sleep.

In the other group are citizens who stand ready to do all that they can to help bring about a resumption of work. These are not, in most cases, emissaries of the railroads but, business and professional men, who are interested in having those who have made their homes in this city remain here as neighbors after the strike is a thing of the past.

Such being the situation, there ought to be a readiness to impute the highest possible motives, and a hesitancy before unduly censuring the attitude of the other party or parties. Brainerd's citizens, irrespective of whether they are business men, professional men, men at work, or men on strike, are all interested in bringing the strike to an end. And no one in seeking to influence the strikers one way or the other should be too hardly blamed. Each has his own conception of which course will result in the highest good of the strikers.

If the pressure of conditions leads some to favor a return to work, the circumstances are to blame, for family misfortune and need may try even the strongest of men, and these ought not to be blamed for reacting under the pressure of conditions. Neither ought others, having a different viewpoint and less pressing need, to be too harshly blamed for their stand. $1,000,000 COURT ORDER CONFIRMED

State Supreme Court Supports Decision of Judge W. S. McClenahan of the District Court

MAL CLARK IS RECEIVER

Latter Secured Order for Assessment of Mining Stock $1 Per Share to Pay Debts

The State Supreme Court today affirmed the order of Judge W. S. McClenahan of the district court at Brainerd in the case of Charles F. Hosford, Jr., plaintiff-respondent, vs. the Cuyuna Minneapolis Iron Company, defendant-respondent and B. W. Wilder, et al, intervenors-appellants.

The case is one of the most important in mining litigation and concerns stockholders' liabilities. To pay the debts of the mining company, the receiver Mal Clark of Brainerd, applied for and was allowed the order levying an assessment of $1 per share on the 1,000,000 shares of the company.

SYLLABUS
1. The refusal to vacate an order for an assessment of the stockholders of an insolvent corporation to give some of them an opportunity to be heard as to the amount of the assessment is justified unless, upon the showing made, the court, in the exercise of sound judicial discretion, should have vacated the order.

2. Notice of hearing an application for an order levying an assessment on stockholders may be given by publication if the court so directs.

3. It did not appear from the showing made that the court failed to consider assets of the corporation which should have been taken into account in determining whether a stockholders' assessment was necessary, or that the assessment was excessive. The order refusing to vacate it on these grounds was justified.

OPINION

The defendant is a mining company incorporated in this state, but its articles of incorporation failed to limit its activities exclusively to mining, and hence there is liability to creditors on the part of its stockholders.

Its authorized capital stock was one million shares, each of the par value of one dollar, and practically all of it had been issued. A judgment was recovered against the corporation, upon which an execution was issued and returned unsatisfied. Thereupon this action was commenced to sequester its property and have a receiver appointed, and Mal Clark, an attorney at Brainerd was duly appointed. On his appointment, he filed a petition for the assessment of the stockholders, and an order was duly entered levying a 100% assessment. Pursuant to the court's direction, two weeks published notice of the hearing of the petition had been given. Until they received notice of the assessment through the mails, the appellants did not know of the proceedings. They promptly applied to the court for the vacation of the order levying the assessment and for leave to serve and file a complaint in intervention to contest the receiver's application therefor. An order to show cause was issued and at the hearing affidavits were presented by the intervenors and the receiver, and the testimony of the receiver was taken. Subsequently the court discharged the order to show cause and denied the intervenors any relief, and they appealed.

The sole question is whether, upon the showing made, the court erred in refusing to vacate the order levying the assessment. The refusal to vacate it and to give appellants an opportunity to be heard cannot be called into question here unless the showing they made was such as to require the court, in the exercise of sound judicial discretion, to grant their demand for relief. Sec. 7786, G. S. 1913. O'Hara v. Western Mortgage Loan Co., 147 Minn. 417.

The order was made upon proper notice. Sec. 6645, G. S. 1913, directs that such notice of hearing the receiver's petition shall be given as the court deems proper and shall order, and that it may be given by publication or otherwise. The statute does not require the notice to be mailed to the stockholders or served upon them personally. The substance of appellants' complaint with respect to the character of the notice is that it did not actually apprise them of the proceeding which resulted in the assessment. That fact did not affect the jurisdiction of the court to order the assessment. At most it was a circumstance to be considered in passing upon the application for the vacation of the order.

The indebtedness of the corporation was $516,534.69. Its assets $2,800 in addition to the claims hereafter mentioned. It had filed a claim of $300,000 against the United States under an act of Congress providing for the reimbursement of producers of manganese ore for expenditures made during the war with Germany, to increase their production of ore to serve the needs of the government. The appellants assert that the court did not take this claim into account in considering the financial condition of the corporation. They also assert that the primary liability of stockholders who paid the corporation nothing, or less than par on the stock they obtained from it, was not taken into consideration and that it amounted to as much as $800,000. Finally, they assert that an assessment of $1,000,000 to pay an indebtedness of $516,534.69 would be excessive even if the corporation had no assets. The sum and substance of appellants' complaint is that by denying them an opportunity to be heard, an unnecessary, or at least a grossly excessive assessment has been levied and is allowed to stand. At the hearing the receiver produced evidence tending to show that the claim against the United States was in charge of an attorney at Washington who was to receive for his services a contingent fee of 50% of the amount realized and that he had reported that in his opinion the maximum allowance would not exceed $60,000. On this showing, the alleged asset of $300,000 shrinks to $30,000.

With respect to the primary liability of stockholders who obtained their stock without paying for it in full, the receiver showed that but 1,396 shares of such stock are owned by residents of Minnesota. It was shown that one Frank W. Merritt had transferred to the corporation a tract of land, a mining lease, and an option covering an interest in another mining lease, and had received in exchange all but a few shares of the entire authorized capital stock. In this transaction he agreed to return and did return 549,997 shares to the corporation, which it carried on its books as treasury stock. 104,691 shares were subsequently sold by the corporation at prices ranging from 40c to 60c a share, and 100,000 shares were turned over to Henry A. Berg, a Pennsylvania banker, as a bonus in connection with the sale of bonds amounting to $300,000, which the corporation issued and sold.

Appellant assert that the transaction with Merritt was a palpable attempt to evade Sec. 6193, G. S. 1913, prohibiting a corporation from issuing its stock for a less amount actually paid in than its par value, and that all the persons who obtained any of the stock so returned without paying par therefor may and should be compelled to pay for it in full before the stockholders' constitutional liability is enforced. There seems to be a substantial basis for this assertion, the transaction being not unlike the one condemned in Wallace v. Carpenter & Co. 70 Minn. 321. Nevertheless the fact remains that in all probability there will have to be litigation before the receiver can convert these claims into money; that most of the litigation will have to be carried on in other states; that the outcome is uncertain and his ability to collect any judgments he may recover is also uncertain. Unless the available assets, or such amount as might be realized therefrom within a reasonable time, will be sufficient to pay the expenses and the corporate debts in full and without delay, the court was justified in refusing to disturb the order for the assessment. Sec. 6645, G. S. 1913. We are of the opinion that the showing made by appellants with respect to both sources from which the receiver may obtain funds was not such as to require the conclusion that expenses and debts could be paid promptly without resorting to an assessment upon the stockholders, and that no better showing could be made if the application for the assessment were to be heard anew. It is quite possible that as the result of enforcing the maximum liability of the stockholders more money may come into the receiver's hands than will be needed to pay the debts and expenses. But if judgments are recovered against solvent stockholders aggregating in amount more than enough to pay all demands, execution may be stayed if the court so directs, for all proceedings on the part of the receiver are within its control. In addition to this protection against arbitrary or unnecessary action by the receiver, which appellants profess to fear, they have the further protection of the statute, Sec. 6651, G. S. 1913, which provides for the return of any surplus remaining in the receiver's hands after the expenses and debts are paid. See also Straw & E. Mig. Co. v. L. D. Kilbourne & B. S. Co., 80 Minn. 125, and Finch v. Vanasek, 132 Minn. 9. Taking into consideration the magnitude of the indebtedness, the fact that some of the stockholders cannot be located, that some are alleged to be insolvent, that only a small portion of the stock is owned in this state, that the corporation has no live assets, that its claims heretofore mentioned cannot be converted into money without delay, that the amount which may be realized from them is uncertain, that the probable expense of the receivership will be considerable, and the rule that it is largely within the province of the district court to determine the amount of an assessment and that this court should not interfere unless it is palpably beyond all reasonable necessity, Finch v. Vanasek, supra, we hold that, in the exercise of its discretion, the court was justified in discharging the order to show cause and in refusing to set aside the order for the assessment. Order affirmed.

$1,000,000 COURT ORDER CONFIRMED

State Supreme Court Supports Decision of Judge W. S. McClenahan of the District Court

MAL CLARK IS RECEIVER
Latter Secured Order for Assessment of Mining Stock $1 Per Share to Pay Debts

The State Supreme Court today affirmed the order of Judge W. S. McClenahan of the district court at Brainerd in the case of Charles F. Hosford, Jr., plaintiff-appellant, vs. the Cuyuna Minneapolis Iron Company, defendant-appellee and B. W. Wilder, et al, intervenors-appellants.

The case is one of the most important in mining litigation and concerns stockholders' liabilities. To pay the debts of the mining company, the receiver Mal Clark of Brainerd, applied for and was allowed the order levying an assessment of $1 per share on the 1,000,000 shares of the company.

SYLLABUS
1. The refusal to vacate an order for an assessment of the stockholders of an insolvent corporation to give some of them an opportunity to be heard as to the amount of the assessment is justified unless, upon the showing made, the court, in the exercise of sound judicial discretion, should have vacated the order.

2. Notice of hearing an application for an order levying an assessment on stockholders may be given by publication if the court so directs.

3. It did not appear from the showing made that the court failed to consider assets of the corporation which should have been taken into account in determining whether a stockholders' assessment was necessary, or that the assessment was excessive. The order refusing to vacate it on these grounds was justified.

Affirmed. OPINION

The defendant is a mining company incorporated in this state, but its articles of incorporation failed to limit its activities exclusively to mining, and hence there is liability to creditors on the part of its stockholders.

Its authorized capital stock was one million shares, each of the par value of one dollar, and practically all of it had been issued. A judgment was recovered against the corporation, upon which an execution was issued and returned unsatisfied. Thereupon this action was commenced to sequester its property and have a receiver appointed, and Mal Clark, an attorney at Brainerd was duly appointed. On his appointment, he filed a petition for the assessment of the stockholders, and an order was duly entered levying a 100c assessment. Pursuant to the court's direction, two weeks published notice of the hearing of the petition had been given. Until they received notice of the assessment through the mails, the appellants did not know of the proceedings. They promptly applied to the court for the vacation of the order levying the assessment and for leave to serve and file a complaint in intervention to contest the receiver's application therefor. An order to show cause was issued and at the hearing affidavits were presented by the intervenors and the receiver, and the testimony of the receiver was taken. Subsequently the court discharged the order to show cause and denied the intervenors any relief, and they appealed.

The sole question is whether, upon the showing made, the court erred in refusing to vacate the order levying the assessment. The refusal to vacate it and to give appellants an opportunity to be heard cannot be called into question here unless the showing they made was such as to require the court, in the exercise of sound judicial discretion, to grant their demand for relief. Sec. 7786, G. S. 1913. O'Hara v. Western Mortgage Loan Co., 147 Minn. 417. The order was made upon proper notice. Sec. 6645, G. S. 1913, directs that such notice of hearing the receiver's petition shall be given as the court deems proper and shall order, and that it may be given by publication or otherwise. The statute does not require the notice to be mailed to the stockholders or served upon them personally. The substance of appellants' complaint with respect to the character of the notice is that it did not actually apprise them of the proceeding which resulted in the assessment. That fact did not affect the jurisdiction of the court to order the assessment. At most it was a circumstance to be considered in passing upon the application for the vacation of the order.

The indebtedness of the corporation was $516,534.69. Its assets $2,800 in addition to the claims hereafter mentioned. It had filed a claim of $300,000 against the United States under an act of Congress providing for the reimbursement of producers of manganese ore for expenditures made during the war with Germany, to increase their production of ore to serve the needs of the government. The appellants assert that the court did not take this claim into account in considering the financial condition of the corporation. They also assert that the primary liability of stockholders who paid the corporation nothing, or less than par on the stock they obtained from it, was not taken into consideration and that it amounted to as much as $800,000. Finally, they assert that an assessment of $1,000,000 to pay an indebtedness of $516,534.69 would be excessive even if the corporation had no assets. The sum and substance of appellants' complaint is that by denying them an opportunity to be heard, an unnecessary, or at least a grossly excessive assessment has been levied and is allowed to stand. At the hearing the receiver produced evidence tending to show that the claim against the United States was in charge of an attorney at Washington who was to receive for his services a contingent fee of 50c of the amount realized and that he had reported that in his opinion the maximum allowance would not exceed $60,000. On this showing, the alleged asset of $300,000 shrinks to $30,000.

With respect to the primary liability of stockholders who obtained their stock without paying for it in full, the receiver showed that but 1,896 shares of such stock are owned by residents of Minnesota. It was shown that one Frank W. Merritt had transferred to the corporation a tract of land, a mining lease, and an option covering an interest in another mining lease, and had received in exchange all but a few shares of the entire authorized capital stock. In this transaction he agreed to return and did return 549,997 shares to the corporation, which it carried on its books as treasury stock. 104,691 shares were subsequently sold by the corporation at prices ranging from 40c to 60c a share, and 100,000 shares were turned over to Henry A. Berg, a Pennsylvania banker, as a bonus in connection with the sale of bonds amounting to $300,000, which the corporation issued and sold.

Appellant assert that the transaction with Merritt was a palpable attempt to evade Sec. 6193, G. S. 1913, prohibiting a corporation from issuing its stock for a less amount actually paid in than its par value, and that all the persons who obtained any of the stock so returned without paying par therefor may and should be compelled to pay for it in full before the stockholders' constitutional liability is enforced. There seems to be a substantial basis for this assertion, the transaction being not unlike the one condemned in Wallace v. Carpenter & Co. 70 Minn. 321. Nevertheless the fact remains that in all probability there will have to be litigation before the receiver can convert these claims into money; that most of the litigation will have to be carried on in other states; that the outcome is uncertain and his ability to collect any judgments he may recover is also uncertain. Unless the available assets, or such amount as might be realized therefrom within a reasonable time, will be sufficient to pay the expenses and the corporate debts in full and without delay, the court was justified in refusing to disturb the order for the assessment. Sec. 6648, G. S. 1913. We are of the opinion that the showing made by appellants with respect to both sources from which the receiver may obtain funds was not such as to require the conclusion that expenses and debts could be paid promptly without resorting to an assessment upon the stockholders, and that no better showing could be made if the application for the assessment were to be heard anew. It is quite possible that as the result of enforcing the maximum liability of the stockholders more money may come into the receiver's hands than will be needed to pay the debts and expenses. But if judgments are recovered against solvent stockholders aggregating in amount more than enough to pay all demands, execution may be stayed if the court so directs, for all proceedings on the part of the receiver are within its control. In addition to this protection against arbitrary or unnecessary action by the receiver, which appellants profess to fear, they have the further protection of the statute, Sec. 6651, G. S. 1913, which provides for the return of any surplus remaining in the receiver's hands after the expenses and debts are paid. See also Straw & E. Mfg. Co. v. L. D. Kilbourne & S. Co., 80 Minn. 125, and Finch v. Vanasek, 132 Minn. 9. Taking into consideration the magnitude of the indebtedness, the fact that some of the stockholders cannot be located, that some are alleged to be insolvent, that only a small portion of the stock is owned in this state, that the corporation has no live assets, that its claims heretofore mentioned cannot be converted into money without delay, that the amount which may be realized from them is uncertain, that the probable expense of the receiver's ship will be considerable, and the rule that it is largely within the province of the district court to determine the amount of an assessment and that this court should not interfere unless it is palpably beyond all reasonable necessity, Finch v. Vanasek, supra, we hold that, in the exercise of its discretion, the court was justified in discharging the order to show cause and in refusing to set aside the order for the assessment.

Order affirmed.

FANNING WITH ARRELL

MANY CHANGES IN FOOTBALL RULES

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, Sept. 29.—Contrary to general opinion, there are more than forty changes in the new football code, according to Ernest C. Quigley, well known National League umpire and prominent football referee.

Quigley in collaboration with Charles B. Moran, fellow National League umpire and coach of the famous Centre College eleven, have written a series of articles on football that is one of the best ever done.

One feature of the series is an explanation of the changes in the rules that is so well done it was used at the recent meeting of football coaches and referees held in New York to interpret the new changes.

One of the most important changes, of course, is the new method of scoring a point after a touchdown.

The option of trying a kick, a run or a forward pass from formation will result in the expenditure of more work for one point than has ever been done before.

It also will bring about the possibility of losing a very valuable player by injury for one measly little point.

Some of the eastern officials considered that the changes made in the rules for a shift would make it impossible for Princeton to use the noted system of end play which Coach Roper made such a success of. Quigley, however, maintains that instead of hampering that system of end play that the new rule opens more and larger fields for its use.

Quigley is well known around the baseball loop but it is not generally known that he is a law graduate and that for fourteen years he was the instructor in English, Latin and history at St. Mary's College in Kansas.

He also is one of the foremost authorities in the country on rules as in addition to umpiring in professional baseball and officiating in football, he is one of the officials annually at the A. A. U. national basketball championships.

Spike Webb, the boxing instructor at the U. S. Naval Academy, claims to have invented a new punch which he has styled the "navy double punch." It is a quick delivery of a right to the jaw and a left to the body. "To work the combination it is necessary to draw the opponent in by a series of feints and when this happens, the body is well shifted around to the left side in order to deliver a short snappy backhand punch with the right hand. This causes the opponent to raise his guard leaving the body open for a left hook," Spike says.

It is not patented. Anyone wanting to practice on Jack Dempsey is welcome.

George Sisler is generally regarded as the most likely candidate to step into the shoes of Ty Cobb. The "Sizzler" has already started stealing Cobb's records. Recently when he hit safely in forty-one games he took a record away from Ty Cobb that he had held since 1911.

Panchi Villa, the new American flyweight champion, has a fight arranged with Jimmy Wilde, the little Englishman, for the world's championship. He hardly will take a chance on losing that good purse by meeting anyone in the meantime. If he wants a good fight, however, he might accept the challenge of Bud Taylor, the new Chicago sensation. Taylor says he will make 112 pounds for Villa and if Pancho can't see him, he'll go after Joe Lynch.

AMUSEMENTS

"Travelin' On"

To be unaware of his own name, unable to read or write and to adopt a cattle brand as his sole means of identification—that is the role portrayed by William S. Hart in his latest and most memorable Paramount picture, "Travelin' On," to be presented at the Lyceum theatre tonight and Saturday.

J. B. is the identification disc of this man whom fate has decreed shall be a wanderer, forever travelin' on, and it has cursed him with a mistrust of everything that walks on less than four legs. And so he roams the face of the earth, caring only for himself and his pinto pony, taking whatever he wants until there comes the day when he finds that the cards have been stacked against him; it is when he comes up against the power of God, a power which he cannot understand until it is shown to him through the love and trust of a beautiful woman. Ethel Grey Terry is leading woman in this pulsing epic of the Arizona—that was. Little Mary Jane Irving and Brinsley Shaw are in the cast and Lambert Hillier directed.

MANY CHANGES IN FOOTBALL RULES

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, Sept. 29.—Contrary to general opinion, there are more than forty changes in the new football code, according to Ernest C. Quigley, well known National League umpire and prominent football referee.

Quigley in collaboration with Charles B. Moran, fellow National League umpire and coach of the famous Centre College eleven, have written a series of articles on football that is one of the best ever done.

One feature of the series is an explanation of the changes in the rules that is so well done it was used at the recent meeting of football coaches and referees held in New York to interpret the new changes.

One of the most important changes, of course, is the new method of scoring a point after a touchdown.

The option of trying a kick, a run or a forward pass from formation will result in the expenditure of more work for one point than has ever been done before.

It also will bring about the possibility of losing a very valuable player by injury for one measly little point.

Some of the eastern officials considered that the changes made in the rules for a shift would make it impossible for Princeton to use the noted system of end play which Coach Roper made such a success of. Quigley, however, maintains that instead of hampering that system of end play that the new rule opens more and larger fields for its use.

Quigley is well known around the baseball loop but it is not generally known that he is a law graduate and that for fourteen years he was the instructor in English, Latin and history at St. Mary's College in Kansas.

He also is one of the foremost authorities in the country on rules as in addition to umpiring in professional baseball and officiating in football, he is one of the officials annually at the A. A. U. national basketball championships.

Spike Webb, the boxing instructor at the U. S. Naval Academy, claims to have invented a new punch which he has styled the "navy double punch." It is a quick delivery of a right to the jaw and a left to the body. "To work the combination it is necessary to draw the opponent in by a series of feints and when this happens, the body is well shifted around to the left side in order to deliver a short snappy backhand punch with the right hand. This causes the opponent to raise his guard leaving the body open for a left hook," Spike says.

It is not patented. Anyone wanting to practice on Jack Dempsey is welcome.

George Sisler is generally regarded as the most likely candidate to step into the shoes of Ty Cobb. The "Sizzler" has already started stealing Cobb's records. Recently when he hit safely in forty-one games he took a record away from Ty Cobb that he had held since 1911.

Pancho Villa, the new American flyweight champion, has a fight arranged with Jimmy Wilde, the little Englishman, for the world's championship. He hardly will take a chance on losing that good purse by meeting anyone in the meantime. If he wants a good fight, however, he might accept the challenge of Bud Taylor, the new Chicago sensation. Taylor says he will make 112 pounds for Villa and if Pancho can't see him, he'll go after Joe Lynch.

AMUSEMENTS

"Travelin' On"

To be unaware of his own name, unable to read or write and to adopt a cattle brand as his sole means of identification—that is the role portrayed by William S. Hart in his latest and most memorable Paramount picture, "Travelin' On," to be presented at the Lyceum theatre tonight and Saturday.

J. B. is the identification disc of this man whom fate has decreed shall be a wanderer, forever travelin' on, and it has cursed him with a mistrust of everything that walks on less than four legs. And so he roams the face of the earth, caring only for himself and his pinto pony, taking whatever he wants until there comes the day when he finds that the cards have been stacked against him; it is when he comes up against the power of God, a power which he cannot understand until it is shown to him through the love and trust of a beautiful woman.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Color, Gloss and Attractiveness

Almost every one knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago, the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and dray this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.—Advt.
